ASK JOE THE LANDSCAPER

Joe Morris is QCLL agronomic guru. Once a month he answers FAQ sent in by QCLL Customers. To submit your question for Joe, just email him at info@queencitylawn.com and he will be glad to give you his expert advice.

QCLL Customer: How much should I water my lawn and landscape?

Joe the Landscaper: This is the most asked question in our industry. Each lawn and landscape is different so there is no concrete answer, but there are some general rules.

- 1) Always water you lawn between 2am-10am. This is considered the natural dew point of the lawn. This is a great cultural practice that will help keep brown patch from occurring.
- 2) Water deeply, but infrequently. Watering 4-7 days a week is not effective and just wasting water. Watering 2-3 days a week is much more effective as long as you water deeply to ensure the roots are getting the benefit. If you can take a long flat head screwdriver and stick it into the ground with your hands you are watering enough.
- 3) Shrubs only need a 1/3 of the water that fescue lawns need. Too many customers overwater their trees and shrubs. 9 out of 10 dead shrubs are because of TOO MUCH water!!

TREE/SHRUB INSECT AND DISEASE TREATMENTS

With the hot days approaching insect activity will start to run rampant. Insects feast on your landscape causing plant damage. We can help control these destructive insects by applying an insect and disease treatment. This application will control many damaging insects like Japanese Beetles, aphids, lace bugs, etc... In addition, this application will protect your landscape from many diseases that spread over the summer.

PROPER MOWING

Fescue lawns are classified as a cool season turf. As the hotter temperatures approach make sure you are mowing your lawn at 3.5 to 4 inches tall. This will help the cool season turf make it through the summer heat stress. Set your mower on its highest setting to get this height.
